

HOW MANY MEN WERE ON THE BASES, SCOOP?

FAST BASEBALL WITH SCORE 3 TO 1

By the score of 3 to 1, Great Falls won the fastest and snappiest game that Ogden has lost during the present season. There was not a moment in the hour and twenty minutes when there was not a fielding, batting, pitching or baserunning feature that did not call for favorable comment.

There were only ten hits during the game. Great Falls secured six of the ten and Ogden was left with the remainder. "Randy" Ballinger for Ogden was working in fine shape and had all kinds of control. A new twirler, by the name of Veley, opened for Great Falls but when he showed a startling tendency to walk the first man each inning and then let the next man hit safely he was withdrawn, and "Flame" Delhi was sent to the rescue. He was some rescuer, too. He was the very image of calmness and had such a variety of fast and slow balls that the Ogden swatters were puzzled. "Flame" also was a fast worker and caught Ballinger with two strikes while that pitcher was waiting for him to wind up. Even Moorehead let him put one over the plate, while he was dreaming.

The fielding of Jones was the feature of the day. That young man stood his ground and like a big leaguer scooped up the hot ones that came near him. Of the five clean assists chalked up to Jones three came to him in one inning and all came like bullets. He scooped them sensationally and pegged them to Woolums with unerring accuracy. Every player on the Ogden team starred yesterday during some good play.

Ogden's only run was secured in the fourth. Veley walked Jones and Wessler sacrificed him to second. Risberg sent out a long double to left field, scoring Jones. Delhi then replaced Veley and Felts grounded to first and Veley went out by the short-stop first base route.

There was a big measure of luck in Great Falls victory, coupled with first class baseball.

Hester's men scored their first run in the second. Toner sent out a long one to center which could have been caught by either Moorehead or Felts. Each thought the other would take it and the ball dropped between the two, giving Toner two bags. Galena sacrificed Toner to third, from which base he scored when Siner bunted.

Hester doubled in the ninth and Faye got a base when Ballinger threw poorly to Woolums. Kelly was out at first when Woolums made a sensational stop and then Toner singled, scoring Hester and Faye. Toner and Galena made the next two out.

The only shadow during the game was the attempt at unfair tactics on the part of Potts in the third inning. Jones had scooped up Potts' wicked grounder and was slightly unbalanced as he threw to first. Woolums reached the ball all right with one hand and to get Potts out it was necessary to touch him with the ball held in the gloved hand. Potts, out of sight of the umpire, attempted to bump into Woolums so the ball would drop.

The Great Falls players evidently had humps in their throats prior to securing the two extra runs in the eighth, as they indulged in a wild demonstration of joy when the runners came over the rubber. In a pinch, some of the boys from the north are inclined to rough tactics, though a majority of them are above criticism. Hester, the manager, sets a bad example. But Hester has a grudge. Last year the Ogden fans dubbed him bonehead and he has never quite forgiven them. His playing here this season proves he is anything but a bonehead.

In team work, the Great Falls players are the best in the league, and they know how to run bases, something in which Ogden is deficient.

FOR WORLD'S TENNIS CUP

United States and England Will Meet at Wimbledon Tomorrow to Begin Series Which Will Decide Question of International Championship

With the United States and English teams in roles of challenger and defender, respectively, the challenge round at Wimbledon tomorrow (July 25) marks the beginning of the final play in the twelfth tournament for the Davis Cup, emblematic of the world's team tennis championship. Donated in 1900 by Dwight F. Davis as a trophy for international competition, the cup and contest have grown in importance until today the struggle for possession of the prize—a massive silver bowl—has taken rank second to none in worldwide sport competition.

For this emblem of championship in tennis the teams of seven countries were drawn into play this summer exclusive of the English quartet, which in the position of cup-holders, stood out and awaited the arrival of the ultimate challenger, which proved to be the United States team, France, Germany, Belgium, Canada, the United States, Australia and South Africa all entered the lists and the true international character of the play is shown by the fact that three of the preliminary rounds were played in England, one in the United States and another in Germany.

The United States team won from the Australian trio four matches to one in the play at the West Side club, New York City, early in June. German players eliminated France at Wiesbaden by a similar score on June 5, 6 and 7. When the Canadian and South African teams met later in the month the Maple Leaf representatives won three matches to one. In the semi-final rounds both Canada and the United States had a clean sweep, the Canadians defeating Belgium, which had drawn a bye, five matches straight, and the United States team disposed of Germany by a similar score of matches. Thus it came about that players from the new world met in the final round, with the Americans winning the right to face the English racquet wielders in the last stage of the cup quest.

The team to which the United States Lawn Tennis Association pins its faith of retaining the Davis Cup is composed of three youngsters and one veteran. Despite the fact that Maurice E. McLoughlin, R. Norris Williams 2nd and Wallace F. Johnson are young in years, they form a most formidable trio when considered from a tennis tournament standpoint. McLoughlin, who is but twenty-three years of age, was born at Carson City, Nev., in 1890. He stands 5 feet 10 1/2 inches and weighs about 165 pounds in condition. The present United States champion first learned his tennis on the asphalt courts of California. It was not until 1909, during his first eastern invasion, that he played upon a grass court.

Williams represents the foreign methods of tennis play on the American team, for he was coached abroad. The son of C. Duane Williams, who lost his life in the sinking of the Titanic, he was born at Geneva, Switzerland, in 1891, and finished his freshman year at Harvard University just previous to the beginning of the present Davis Cup play. His father, always an enthusiastic tennis player, saw to it that his son while still in his teens, had the best coaching and practice available and the result is shown in the fact that Williams plays the best all around and most finished game of any of the American quartet. Although he never played his game in this country until last spring his game immediately attracted attention. He won the clay court championship at Philadelphia and was only put out of the championship at Newport in the sixth round, when McLoughlin defeated him, 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3.

These two players, who are bracketed one and two in the national rankings, will play with Capt. Harold H. Hackett, lead the attack in the play at Wimbledon against Parke, Roper, Barrett, Dixon and Gore, the English defenders. Hackett is the veteran of the quartet, being a player of many years' experience on both American and foreign courts. Although a prominent singles player as far back as 1902 it was not until he doubled with F. B. Alexander, three years later, that he came into the championship limelight. In 1907 the pair won their first national doubles honors and were invincible until 1911, when they bowed to Little and Tilden.

Hackett is a noted tennis tactician and his play frequently appears both simple and easy to the spectator but when he is at the top of his game a more skillful placement player and deceptive server would be hard to name. In the unavoidable absence of Bundy, Hackett was conceded to be the strongest player available to double with McLoughlin. Johnson, who acts as reserve, completes the quartet. He is also one of the recently developed youngsters who promises to make American tennis history in the near future. In the English singles Johnson worked his way to the fourth round before being defeated by R. D. Watson, 2-6, 8-6, 6-1, 7-5. At Newport last August he forced McLoughlin to go full five sets before he would admit defeat in the final round of the championship singles, the scores being 3-6, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-2.

During the thirteen years since the Davis Cup was first put in play eleven championship tournaments have been completed and the score of championships stand as follows: British Isles, 5; Australia, 4; United States, 2. Not including the present series forty-three players, representing six countries, have battled for the trophy, the number by nations for colonies being: United States, 15; British Isles, 14; Australia, 5; France, 5; Belgium, 2; Austria, 2.

As soon as play for the trophy was announced England challenged the United States for the cup, losing the first contest in the summer of 1900 in straight matches. Two years later the British Isles players had another try but were repelled three matches to two. Encouraged by this improved showing they returned again in 1903 with a team composed of the Doherty brothers, and won four matches to one. England held the cup until 1907, when the Australians won with their two famous stars, Brookes and Wilding. The trophy was held in the Antipodes until last winter when the British Isles team, consisting of Parke, Dixon and Beamish, won and brought the bowl back to England.

BASEBALL

Senators 7, White Sox 1.

Chicago, July 23.—Joe Boehling of the Washington club established an American league record for the season today when he won his eleventh consecutive victory. His last victim was the Chicago club, which he held to six scattered hits, the visitors taking the game 7 to 1.

The Washingtonians were helped by the rascled fielding of Callahan's men. In the second inning, Calvo sacrificed and McBride, Henry and Moeller singled, and Chase contributed an error which netted Griffith's men three runs. In the sixth inning Chase stabbed three more errors, while Chappell made one, which with a sacrifice gave Washington three runs without hit. The Chicago team left for Boston tonight.

The recruit third baseman obtained from Seattle, accompanied the club. Pitcher Miller of the local club was released to the San Francisco of the Pacific Coast league today. He was formerly a member of the Seattle club.

Athletics 8, Browns 1.

St. Louis, July 23.—"Lefty" Hamilton's string of six consecutive victories was broken this afternoon when Philadelphia by bunting hits and taking advantage of errors, won the final game of the series 8 to 1. With men on the bases, Bender was almost invincible.

After making two rank errors, Williams made one of the greatest catches seen here this season when he ran to second base, pulled down Collins' little pop up and threw to first base, doubling Walsh.

New York 2, Pittsburgh 0.

New York, July 23.—New York made it three straight over Pittsburgh today, winning 2 to 0. Marquard, who won his eighth straight victory, held the visitors to two hits. McQuillan also pitched well for Pittsburgh, but he had a bad first inning, when the champions made three of their five hits and did all of their scoring.

The fielding was sensational on both sides, Wagner making two great stops in the sixth.

WINDUP OF TENNIS MATCH

Omaha, Neb., July 24.—Good weather and hard, fast courts greeted the players in the fourth round windup of the fourth national Clay court tournament at the Omaha Field club today.

Larmon, the 18-year-old Omaha boy, who eliminated Roland Hoerr, St. Louis, Missouri Valley champion, yesterday, matched with John Strachan, San Francisco, one of the Pacific Coast champions in doubles.

Other good matches on the day's program included that between Merrill Hall, one of last year's champions in triples, and Joe Armstrong, middle-west champion; Clarence Griffin, coast doubles champion, and Drummond Jones, a St. Louis crack; Cub Potter, local star, and Fred Harris, holder of many eastern championships.

The third round in doubles was on the schedule for today and the pairings brought some of the stellar men together, Armstrong and Scribner, St. Paul, and Omaha, opposing Jones and Hoerr; Hall and Harris against Beyer and Sweet, Grinnell and Des Moines and Strachan and Griffin to play Madden and Kennedy of Omaha.

No. 4. EXPLORING

Copyright, 1913, by The Associated Newspaper School, Inc.

The lure of the unknown is strong in all of us. We like to find the hidden bays, to make our way up strange rivers, to prow along roads new to us, and to explore the woods. And if there are mountains near, we take the keenest pleasure in climbing every face of them, on the lookout for strange creatures and hidden caverns.

Aside from the search for gold, it must have been this feeling, to a great degree, that prompted and spurred on the early explorers in their wanderings.

What is more invigorating than to start out with a good companion and a comfortable stick for a day's tramp through the woods, with no appointment to keep and no "park rules" to observe? Old shoes and a drinking cup and luncheon in your knapsack, are the only needs. Forth you go, breathing the air more deeply in very anticipation of the pleasure that is to be yours. City streets are left far behind, meadows and forests line the road. How merrily the birds are singing! The meadow lark skims along with its burst of silver notes, away over in those bushes the thrush's song is bubbling out in liquid tones.

Striking through the woods, the long forest aisles, shaded and cool, stretch away from you in the distance. Squirrels scamper and look at you from behind their trees of refuge. A rabbit bounds across the way and is gone into the underbrush. And you saunter on, eyes open for everything about—tall trees and nodding ferns store.

Every day a different human interest story will appear in the Standard.
